IMPORTANT TO THE PUBLIC! THE following advertisement was published in May, 1849, in the "Boston Daily Times," and surfous other newspapers in the United States, by James G. Wilzon, Eq. the owner of the "Woodworth Parent," shortly after I had advertised my "PATENT STATIONARY CUTTER, PLANING TOXOGUEING, AND GROOVING MACHINE," throughout the United States:

"I take this method of answering the frequent inquiries, by letter and otherwise, as to my opinion upon the various notices through the papers, of the basiconary Knife Planing Machines attempted to be pulmed off upon several persons ignorant of their true worth. I would state for the information of the enquirers that they will find substantially the machine new othered by several pretending inventors, described in the 10th volume of the Repertery of Arrs, furented by Samuel Bendum, in the year 1791. A like machine was patented in this country by one Kugler, some six teen years since and mother one put up by Albert Richards, of West Troy, N. Y., and thandoned about the same time. Hought to satisfy the public to know that siter finy cight years experimenting upon three machines, not one in use is of any value for the purposes contemplated.

I will furnish a Stationary Knife Machine equal to any new in use, or to any offered by the pretending inventor, at the cost of the machine and five per center the my vouble, May 19, 1849.

I deny that any person over saw or heard of such a machine as mine until I invented the same. Sad machine was operated in the month of Angust, 1849, and no machine he-fore this could do so much work, and do it as well as mine. In reply to the above advertisement, and in order that the pubbe may be assured that I mean what isay, I will offer to pledge ORE THOUSAND DOLLARS against an equal amount from said Wilson, that ONE of my machines will plane, or plane, congress and groove with keep power, as much imper in the same time, and "mechines. The trial to be made at my Stram Mil, Border St, East, Boston, Mass.

In the emerald meadow,
Below aleafy hall,
A child had hamehod his navy
of littles on the fill;
A precious little argoy,
Those littles fresh and white;
As on the daming wares they rode,
He shouled with delight.

He satched want dengine.
He watched their dishty beauty.
As they gally floated on,
Now tolling round the schet banks,
Androcking in the sam;
And then, like allere arrows
In waves of winter light,
Attaching down the fourning fall,
And shooting out of sight.

The birds sang pasans of thin, The sky was fragrant still, Bright butterfiles salled round his ships, Soft winds crept from the hill; His loose locks these din the sun, He warhed with the stream,

Beside a mighty river,
Where it meets the sounding main, Where it nects the summing inting Anold man saw his stately ships Float off to sea again. Winds needled in their great white wings, And rainbows arched each prow, With streaming banners on they speci; Why clouds his furrowed brow;

The old man sits and ponders
When night winds vex the sea,
And booming billows pain his car
With awful prophecy.
Alas? his treasures bring no Joy,

His sleep is not repose— Like the deep rush of the river His restless being flows.

His stately ships return no more, He Lends beneath his care, Heat still looks out upon the deep To use if they are there: He brain grows faint with thinking, For thoughts like spectres rise, Till the socklang hand of stumber Softly shuts his aching eyes. Softly thut his arming eyec.

He sports note by the streamlet.

In the mendows green and wide;

Bo set a his ships of liftler.

On the sunny ripples glide;

The soft breeze wantons with his hair,

His heart leaps blittle and free—

But hush! no breath—a shoreless main

AMEMA, N. Y., April, 1552.

"Home to Thanksgiving!"

It was near 10 o'clock at night, when John Norton and his wife, with the comfortable, quiet feeling, which the heads of large families of the have after the business of the day is over, and the inmates of the house have all but themselves reinmates of the house have all but themselves ter-tired, drew their chairs close around the first col-ing stove, and settled themselves for one of those domestic chats which they had long been in the habit of enjoying together at this hour. Mr. Nor-ton was a farmer, with a very small farm, which, ton was a larmer, with a very small faith, which, as he had seven children and an aged nother to support, was entirely insufficient to do more than provide some of the snaple necessities of life, and he had to eko out the renainder by "jobbing about," when he could find any work to do. But ns he was blest with that greatest of all poor men's blessings—an industrious, frugal, healthy wife, he managed to live without debt, and, as he said, "fairly keep his head above water." These quiet hours' talk before he went to bed, were the pleasantest part of John's life, for he rose early and worked hard all day long, and without these would have known little of the comfort of having a happy home. To-night he was more than usually tired, for he had sawed a cord of wood for Squire Jones, and he began to think, as the great old clock in the kitchen corner struck ten, that Hansah was very wide awake, for her Imitting needle certainly never flow faster, and her eyes were fixed upon the stove as if she discovered some now beauties in its familiar face; yet she had not spoken a word for a long time.

"Hannah" he said at last, after yawning in an imploring way several times, to attract her attention. "Last it time to go be de!" is he had seven children and an aged mother to

"Hannah" he said at last, after yawning in an Imploring way several times, to attract her attention, "Isn't it time to go to bed ?"

"Why, ves" said his wife looking up; "anly I wanted to talk with you, a little while, about a plan I have been thinking of for some time."

"Well, let's have it," said John, brightening, "I don't exactly like to tell you, John, I am afraid you will think I am extravagant."

"That you never are—you will have to turn over a new leaf. What is it?"

"I want to keep Thankspiving—really keep it, John, 23 we never have since we were married."

"How is that?"

"Yee been thinking it over and overall summer,

"How is that?"

"Yee been thinking it over and over all summer, and I made up my mind that, if God blessed us with health, spared all our lives, and brought usin a plentiful harrest, that, when the time came pretty near round, I would now your ghout it.— Now we have not, with all our seven children, and an old mother, had to call a dector for six months, no accident nor harm of any kind has befallen us and I heard you say yesterday that the farm had never yielded so well since you worked it."

"All true, Hannah; but, as it is, we shall only just live; if there had been sickness, or accident, or a poor crop, I must have run in debt, and then, God help the poor man! I feel as if I could not help myself, to any purpose again—still we al-help myself, to any purpose again—still we al-ways have kept Thanksgiving, and I always mean "Yes, but John I want, for mother's sake, to keep a regular old New England Thanksgiving, such as my grandmother used to tell about. You know mother is very old and feeble, and may never live to see another. Let us ask all the family hero—children, grandchildren, and great grand-children.

"Why, Hannah, are you crazy? There is forty or more of them, all told!"

"Well, it's no matter if there are fifty; I have no relations in the world, you know; and mother would so enjoy it!" would so enjoy it."
"But where could you get any thing for them to

"But where could you get any thing for them to sat?"

"Oh! I will engage to give them a first rate dinner, and that, too, without dinnishing very much from our own comfort."

"Why, Hannah, how? I don't see how you would begin. There are pies and puddings, and turkeys and chickens, and apples and nuts. Why it's impossible; where could they all come from?"

"I know, John, it would be pretty close planning; but I think it could be done. I have been thinking it over and over, and am quite sure, if ning; but I think it could be done. I have been thinking it over and over, and am quite sure, if you don't object, I can do it."

"But only think of the folks! You would not ask Sam down from the city, would you?"

"Yes, I would ask every one," said Hannah; "but it is five years last August since he has even sent to inquire for his old mather; so I don't think there is much probability that he will come, or any of his proud family."

"The more shame to him," answered John, Tarving, little, warm "to needled, his proof old.

"The more same to him," answered John, waxing a little warm, "to neglect his poor old mother, and he rolling in gold as he is."
"Never mind the gold, John," said his wife, soothingly; "he has that, and you have your mother, and I am sure she is worth all that ever was deg; and you know you wouldn't for the whole world change places with Sam this mo-whole world change places with Sam this moment."

"No, that's true! only one would like to see him a little more kind to his poor relations."

"And then," pursued his wife, there is Susan, who hasn't a home in the wide world, and has to go to the minister's to be married. We'll have her here, and the wedding shall he where grandmother is; and now! I think of it:—Suppase we have the baby haptized, as the minister will be here; and there is Jane's child, just about Bessie's sage, and mother never has seen it. We'll have that christened, too; and perhaps we could induce poor James to come. My heart vearus after that boy; he is just the age of our Eddy; and who knows but Eddy would have been as had if he had been thrown so on the world; if you and I had died, as his parents did; yes, he is Susan's own and our Martha bride's maid. She is almost lifteen, you know."

and our manner of the small. She is almost in-teen, you know."
"On stop! Haumah—step! exclaimed John,— You will frighten me to death! I Have you been making this plan for one, or two years, that you have got it all cut and dried so?"
"However bed included exits for the harmall. It making this plan for one, or two years, that you have got it all cut and dried so??

Hannah had indeed quite forgotten herself. It had been her design to unfold her wishes one by one, to her husband, as she thought him interested in her, and prepared for them, but having once fairly commenced the subject, her own interest and enthusiasm carried her away—and she now be an to be a little alarmed, lest so many things might destroy the charm with which she had hoped to invest the plan in her husband's eyes. She was therefore glad as the clock struck eleven, to make preparations for immediately retiring to bed, but there was little sleep that might for her! She was walking through large poultry yards singling out, now this fine rooter, now that white turkey, and during even with a bold hand, to snatch from his diguified position the head gander of the flock. And then when her weary eyelids dropped, she would lose this scene, and mon be putting pic after pie, mince, apple, and first and best of all—deep golden punkin, upon the white shelves of an interminable panery, and when her feet refused to hear her there any longer, she was in the ample kitchen, and sleigh bells were ringing merrily up to Ahe door and then, such a shaking of hands and meeting of lips that poor Hannah fairly wearied at last fell soundly askeep. With the morning light came again the host of ways and means that were to be compassed to bring about the desired end—newer was a busy mind more weighed down by cares than hers, and never a kinder heart more willing to supply in happy expedients what use head failed to suggest.

It wanted now but three weeks to thanksgiving, and what was to be done and the and failed to suggest.

st. It wanted now but three weeks to thanksgiving,

It wanted now but three weeks to thanksgiving, and what was to be done must be done quickly. Hannah considered the consent of herbushand as having been given, and the next thing was to consult with the old mother, for aged people sometimes fear the fatigue more than they expect to enjoy pleasure from such scenes; but grandmother had always possessed a warm heart, and lively, sunny disposition, and often the last thing that is chilled by the touch of age, is the heart, and the habit of looking at "the silver lining of the clouds," will keep the soul's eye bright lond after the natural vision has become dimmed, and so happy, and making happy, though with a young grandchildren. They were early taught to feel that a word of reproof, or of approval, from grandmother, was the highest reward or punishment that could be given them. And to attend to all her little wants, the greatest privilege they could enjoy—and thus, in this tarmer's quiet family, met the two extremes of life—and the root light of the morning was so toned and mellowed by the fading rays of the sinking sun, while its deepening twilight was made beautiful by the laughing light of the small golden clouds, which lay around it as it sank to us final rest. On the influence of the pious aged upon the heart of the influence of the pions aged upon the heart of the influence of the pions aged upon the heart of the young, can never be too highly valued, and happy indeed is that family beneath whose roof yet lingers one whose gray hairs and faltering steps are spared a little while longer "from the heme of all the living."

So thought Mrs, Norton, and it had always been, from the first hour that her lusband's mother had chosen her home by their fireside, the subject of her endeavors to make those last days of a long and useful life, the happiest of them all; and now to change a little for her the monotony of a quiet in-door life, to give her something to think over, when those cold bitter winter storms should shut out even the little variety she now had, and to gather once more the members of a large family to tested the little waitety she now had, and to gather once more the members of a large family to herself and children, such were Mrs. N's motive in the laboriouz task of keeping "real New Eng-land Thanksgiving."

land Thanksgiving."

Martha was the eldest child, now nearly fifteen years old, and as there were six younger, she had always been accustoned from a child to "taking care." The mother depended very much upon her, she consulted her in little arrangements, and would have felt as if a great part of the household had been removed if any thing had deprived her of Martha. From early summer she had been her mother's confidante respecting Thanksgiving—and had, in her own quiet way, made a thousand plans for bringing it about. It is astonishing in how many ways children of that age, or even much younger, may be not only comforts, but aids' to their parents. There were numberless little acts of self-sacrifice which Martha was daily performing, and which, though they did not appear at the time to produce any impression on the condition of the family, vet in the aggregate were of great inportance, and what is better yet were forming her own mind and heart to a standard of generous high-toned self-devotior; a freedom from selfishness, at once the passport and the guide to the esteen and love of all who knew her. Through the summer she had taken no butter, no sugar, no tea, nor any of the articles that could be saved, for, as she reasoned to herself "every little helped," and by and by, when the time fairly came, she could tell her parents what she had done to lessen the expected expence.—But Mrs. Norton's watchful eye had long since noticed the sucrifice that Martha was making and had not only divined the cause but as far as it was possible she had aided her. She had, however, refrained from making Martha aware that she had discovered her secret, for she wished her to have the pleasure of making it known to her.

And a joyful surprise it was to all the family. And a joyon surpase it was to an one manny, when one morning after breakfast Mr. Norton inquired of his mother, "If she should feel well enough to like to keep Thanksgiving?" "Why-yes, my son, you know we always do that, and I hope you always will, so long as your old mother is with you." answered the grand-mother. mother, "But, mother," interposed Mrs. Norton no and grandmother's Thanksgiving party could hardly have taken place, but for your constant and untiling willingness to do without."

A rich bluel passed over Martha's face, and a gleam of sun-light into her soul. She loved the words of her gentle mother's approbation, and she loved, too, the smile of pleam which lit up the faded eye of her deer old grandmother.—The children all looked wonderinely at her; and Edward, a fine boy of thirteen, with a toss of his curls from his brown fore head, said, "he might have been doing something, too, if he had been told; but he did not know how a man could be expected to do, when he did not know may thing wasto be done."

In one hour all of the family were busy in doing such things as they were able, to help forward the event. Even little John, who had not seen his third summer, sat upon the floor, and picked out all the specked apples from the baskets which were placed before him. But, for grandmother, what a time it was! The old lady, for the first hour, le't all the care and responsibility. Her cane might be heard, now following after Marthar's light footsteps, to see what she was doing t now, going towards the door of the pantry. To be sine, Hannah had not been able to do anything for her—and happy and proud was she when she found a paper of misins, declaring that with ther new specialces, she could stone them as well as anybody, scated herself close by John. To be sure "the dailing little creature picked the apples over well." Edward had disappeared before the task were allotted—where, or for what, no one knew; but he was a good boy, and it was his parents' principle to trust him until they found he was not right,—and now commenced the first good of our New England festival. A large family, with whom from year to year the living was a struggle, and who, therefore, we in danger of having their hearts soured and narrowed by the necessity which compelled them to bend and exhaust every energy to supply pressing wants, were now, for one day, not only to indulge in that free holiday feeling which rests the heart more than the hody—but they were also to enjoy the luxury of making others happy. It is one of the relies of our Puritan ancestry—that so few such days are given us—days which we need, and which especially our poor need. A near will drive the plough with a steadier, strong hand, if it shall turn up to him occasionally a bright flower from the brown earth.

and cound the wheel turned, nor paused it even when it ushered in a clear, cold sparkling Thanksgiving morning.

Everything was in readiness. The bedstead had been taken down in grandmother's room and a bright wood fire blazed away on the old iron handirons. They were the very same that the old indy had purchased when she was a bride, and no living dog could have been more faithful in attending to her comfort than were the two savage looking from animals, which had for so many long years presided over her fireside. The carpet, which had been made of rags, hoarded excludy for that purpose, was swept so clean that it really looked almost handsome; and Martha's daster had removed, again and again the slightest speck that had ventured to alight upon the well rubbed famiture.

Every invitation has been given heartily, and as heartily accepted. Even the letter to uncle Sam, in Boston, has not been neglected, though its composition and chiregraphy, had cost poor Martha more trouble and anxiety than all the other preparations, and no notice had been taken of it by the grand relation to whom it had gone. The little arrangements, like the wedding, and the christoning, had been kept a sceret between the clear members of the family. Grandmother had not heard a breath of it, though she expressed a little surprise when Bessie's best white dress and the christoning blanket were placed before the fire to air.

CONCLUDED TO-MORROW. and so happy, and making happy, though with a feeble frame, the old lady had sat for years in her old arm chair by her son's fireside, and the growing infirmities and decreptude of age became beautiful and holy lessons in revorence to the state Arsenal to Kossuth.

The time is not far distant when the West will be able to exact justice for itself. The particular measure above recommended, is loudly called for; it would be worth everything to our city, and its importance as furnishing a safe harbor of refuge to lake craft in stormy weather, is incalculable.

COMFORT FOR "OUR PRICEDS THE HOLLANDERS," We find the following in the Sheboygan Lake Journal:

Personal.-There is published in this village a seven by-nine Dutch paper, the reputed editor of which is one J. Quint-ass, whose visage is the very index of meanness and hypocrisy.

This is the introduction to an article of some ength, the burden of which seems to be that Mr. Quartes chose to accept a nomination on a Union ticket. The democracy up in that region seem to think that they have used the Holland voters as long as possible, and now can afford to abuse them.

Judging from the manuer in which the "demoeratic" Senate treated the Assembly bill approprinting a small sum of money for the purpose of providing the Hollanders with some important laws in their own language, the disposition to "slant" at that worthy class of our citizens is still more apparent.

WORTHY OF MENTION.—The Commercial of yeserday very sensibly copies and endorses the SentinePs commendation of Gov. FARWELL'S mortgage veto. Lest, however, its readers should suspect treason in this unwanted act, it applogizes herefor on the ground that the Governor "has "All—all, Hannah, " stammered the old lady; discontinued his subscription" to the Sentinel "What! "Never mind the expense dear mother, we have planned it all, and by being careful, and doing without a few things, we shall have a nice supper just as you used to in old times, and I am sure if there was ever a family who ought to thank God for his goodness to them, it is we, for his having spared you so long to us, mother?"

The old lady's gentle heart sent a tear to her eye—it was her only answer; and amid the riotous rejoicing of the other members of the family the breakfast broke up.

"And now my children." said the mother, as they all flocked around ber, "you have, each one, a something to do to help get ready. Your father is poor you know, and you are hearty little things to feed, and it costs much to clotho you; but we will have the best, if you are willing to help."

Spenker Shafter's Address. The following is the brief response of Hon Mr. Shafter to the resolution of thanks passe just previous to the adjournment: Just previous to the adjointment:

Gentlemen:—Three months have passed sinco wefirst met—we have finished our labors—and in a few moments are to be dissolved—our legislative functions to cease, and in passing from these halls, are to separate, never more to be united. The session of this legislature just closing, is an important epoch in the life of each of us; it has been one of those occasions of extensive influence, which as we complet them one senters of coolers. which, as we employ them, are sources of good or evil to our country, and to us of honor or disgrace I am sure we shall carry hone with us the high consciousness of having faithfully endeavoied to consciousness of having faithfully endeavored to discharge our duty.

We have acted upon over one thousand different bills, memorials, resolutions, and connected therewith, must have passed upon more than ive thousand questions; and if our session has been long, this large amount of business furnishes at once a satisfactory reason—and if it be necessary—apology.

I confidently predict, that when our labors shall be fully seen, it will be found that neither Gentlemen, through the entire session I have the bill granting to the State of Ohio the unsold and unappropriated lands in that State, passed by a vote of 98 to 12. The Front State, but a vote of 98 to 12. The Front State bill and while I do not allude to this as authorized to the state of 98 to 12. and unappropriated lands in that State, passed by a vote of 28 to 13. The French Spoliation bill was taken up, and upon it Mr. Felch finished his speech.

The House was engaged in discussing the Printing Coalition, and a very violent and disgraceful debate followed; the actors being Messrs. Brown, of Miss., Polk, of Tenn., and Rantoul, of Mass. The subject was finally dropped, and the Homestead bill was taken up.

Kossum in Cikcinnati.—The distinguished Hungarian was invited by the City Council to visit that city, and whilst there, he was entertained at the Burnett House. The Council now refuse to pay the bill of Mr. Coleman, the proprietor. The Council that invited him there has gone out of office, and the new Board repudiate the acts of their predecessors. So Mr. Coleman has the bag tabeled S. Long. Republican Western New York-Wisconsin. A Badger friend, who has spent the last nine months in western New York, writes us a long letter from Bergen, Genesee co. under date of April 7th. Though intended merely for our own eye, we have taken the liberty of making a few extracts from it, for the encouragement of our agricultural friends.

"It commenced snowing on Monday, (wind north-east,) and dept it up without intemission for forty-eight hours, and to-day the sleigh-hells are merrily incline. It makes the farmers look for forty-eight hours, and to-day the sleigh-hells are merrily jingling. It makes the farmers look rather sore!

"It seems to me that there can scarcely be found a more undesirable climate than this—There is not more than one-half the sinshine that we have in Wisconsin. It is a gratifying reflection, that if New York can beat Wisconsin in raising winter wheat, (though this is a point not yet fully settled,) she is far behind in some other respects; and it is very crident that the Badgers can live faster and longer on brown bread and sunshine, than the New Yorkers on clouds and pure Genesce? There is much sickness here, and has been during the three-quarters of a year I have been here—more than I have ever seen in Wisconsin, and the diseases seem to be much more fatal. If one is seized with typhus, typhoid or scarlet fever, like Martin Sout's un-hot coon, he might about as well prepare to come down!

more fatal. If one is seized with typhus, typhoid or scallet fever, like Martin Scott's un-hot coon, he might about as well prepare to come down? Everything here than enters into the composition of man and beast, save wheat, brings an enormous price. Corn and potaces are worth, tespectively, 49 and 8s, apples 16s bbl, butter 2s, Narragansett pigs, with their long noses and ranning, are only worth 85.50 per 100, mess pork in the hog, half fatted, 8s, dc. Eggs have been sold in New York the past winter, at 6d apiece! Wheat is wouth about 30 be, with downward tendency.

DAILY SENTINEL.

BY TELEGRAPH.

BY HOTCHKISS LINE. Reported for the Daily Sentinel. RIOT ON THE BAILBOAD.

Rockford, Ill., April 22nd. This morning about 200 Irishmen employed on the Chicago and Galena R. R. 7 miles East of this place, came to town and compelled the workmen on the R. R. near town and those on the Dan to stop their work-Those who refused to comply with their request were badly beaten-The causwas a strike for higher wages.

Our citizens were called out by the Sheriff, and about 150 armed with fire-arms started after the the mob. They overtook them four miles from the town, and released those whom the mob forced away. They also arrested 20 of the leaders,-Those arrested are now being examined before Justice Brown.

DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION.—This body met at Springfield yesterday, and organized by the selection of Hon. J. A. McClernand (old Hunker) as presiding officer, with a suitable number of the same sort, as V. P.'s and Sec.'s.

The following is the reported vote for Governor:

1st ballot 21 balls: Ist ballot 2d ballot.

Sherman, Harris,

Necessary for choice, 125. Up to the 5th bal lot, the vote was the same as on the second.

LATER.—Mattern Nominated!—We have just received the following despatch: Springfield, April 19.

"Matteson nominated for Governor. One handred and thirty for Matteron. Sixtyreven for Gregg, fifty for Dement, on eleventh ballot. Convention adjourned to-morrow."

Kærner was nominated Lieut. Governor.—
Chicago Journal.

Washington, Apil 14 Despatches were received here this morning, an nonnering that Nicaragua had withdrawn from the proposed confederation of Central American the projected confederation of Central American States, and had resumed her position as an independent State. Mr. Kerr, the American Charge de Afaires, had presented his credentials, and been received by the Nicaraguan government—It is now probable that Nicaragua will be admitted as a party to the pending negociations with England, and that all questions in dispute will be properly accommodated.

Dunkirk, April 19. DENKIRK HARBOR OPEN.—The lake is clear of ice. Steamer Michigan left this port yesterday for the west. Steamers Ocean and Ohio have ar-

Washington, April 15th. The Fire at the Capitol.—A number of valuable papers have been destroyed by the fire. The Court Archives are also slightly defaced.

From Orrow.—Advices from Oregon to the 11th of March have been received at San Francisco. The news is of but little importance.

Thirteen of the bedies of these who were lost on board the storner Warren have been found and interred. But few of them were recognized. The schooner Juliet has been lost, supposed to be about thirty miles South of the Columbia river, The commander, Capt. Collins, had written a letter, which had been sent by an Indian to the white settlements, giving a descrption of their whereabouts, fand soliciting aid for themselves, and the preservation of the cargo, the most valuable partion of which was saved, as were the crew.

Joshua Atkins, of Benton county, was killed on the 17th of February by the fall of a tree.

Gold in small quantities had been found near Portland.

PLANK ROAD.—A. L. McCrea Esq., who has the contract for the construction of the Sheboygan and Taycheedah Read, has now on the work one hundred lands, which will ensure its completion at an early day. And by this means Lake Michigan will be connected with Lake Winnebago. This improvement, together with the building of the Harbor, makes Sheboygan a very prominent point and one which must be very discensable to the eyes of enigrants. The large amount of Government land in Northern Wisconsin, made casy of access by this improvement, holds out greater inducements for settlement by the enigrant than aucements for settlement by the emigrant than any other point in the State.—Sheboygan Lake Journal.

Terriner Figure.—A battle of sand boxes came off in the House of Representatives on Thursday of this week between Messes, Woller and Beckel, members. The battle originated in a dispute between these members, both Democrats, concerning the payment of Kossuth's bill. The lie was at length given to Weller, who appreciated the insult by throwing his sand box at Beckel. Whereupon Beckel threw his at Weller. Weller then made as if he designed a closer attack. Members interfered. Applogies followed and thus ended without bloodshed the first fight under the new Constitution.—Toledo Blade.

THE BEGINNING OF THAVEL.—The opening of the harbor at Erie has had the effect to release hun-dreds of travelers who have been ice bound for dreds of travelers who have been ice bound for some days at that point, and our boats arriving from there have brought up very large loads. On Saturday morning the Ocean and Koystone came up with several hundred passengers, and the Michigan Central Railroad train of that norning, took out an extra number of cay-loads to Chicago. A large number of passengers also went out on the Pontiae train. All appearance indicate a rush of emigration to the West this season, and a fine freighting and transportation business for those interests, in consequence.—Det. Free Press.

Winfield Scott.—Not a day passes but gives us some new evidence of the popularity of General Scott, and of the desire of the people to place him in the Presidential Chair. At the Convention at in the Presidential Chair. At the Convention at Painesville, yesterday every voice was raised for Scorr, and the feeling seemed universal, that under his lead the Reserve would again roll up the Whig respirites of 1840, and the party again take the position of which sectional jealousy, and the schemes of selfish leaders have deprived it. In New York, Pennsylvania and Obio, his popularity is such as no other man of this day can boast, and there is no reasonable doubt that these three great States will give him their electoral vote.—Cleveland Herald 16 inst.

Road of Supervisors of Wankesha Co.—
This body met at the Court House on the 15th inst., was called to order by the Clerk, and elected John S. Rockwell of Oconomovoc, Chairman.—
The matter of the contested seat was laid on the table until the November session by tow majority.
Mr. Davis, one of the contestants, voting in favor of the same. This of course, prevented all further discussion upon the matter during the present session of the Beard.—Wankesha Dem.

Sheboycan Harbon.—In a private letter reveived by Fox Cook, Esq., a few days since from Hon. J. D. Doty the following paragraph occurs, which we are permitted to lay before the public.

"The Committee on Commerce has agreed to insert in the General Harbor Bill $10,000 for Sheboygan Harbor, and the bill will be so reported." Resenth's Movements.

Kessuth will go to Mount Vennon on Friday.

We would respectfully call the attention of our many friends, and the public generally, to an in-summent we have recently imported from Paris, from which the above cut was taken. By it we can take the exact shape, and unoringly fit the most irregular heads. Many can testify to the inconvenience, and annoyance, and actual pain they are subjected to, in breaking in Hats that will not fit them. By this ingenious contrivance, this very great annoyance is done away; as the Hats are made to fit perfectly the first time.

Another great advantage is, by keeping a copy of the impression, we can at all times fit our customers from all parts of the country.

We invite all who desire a perfect fit in a Hat, to call and leave an impression of their head; and all those who take pleasure in witnessing the inventions of the ingenious, to call and see the operations of this curious instrument.

Having adopted the Casa System (which all will readily acknowledge to be the best,) we are enabled to sell the best Silk Hat made, at the extreme low price of $4.25; surpassing any $5 Hat sold in this city. Our Hats are all manufactured by ourselves, and in offering them to our customers, we do so, with the confident assurance, they are all we recommend them to be, we invite all who do not wish to pay two profits upon a Hat, and are willing to save 25 per cent, to call and see its.
